Drug Sales in Delaware High Schools

According to responses of Delaware public high school students to the 2011 Delaware Youth Risk Behavior Survey, schools remain a place where students are offered, sold or given illegal drugs, including marijuana. Boys are more likely to report both being offered, sold or given illegal drugs and providing them to others. One in four boys has been offered illegal drugs in school and one in five girls. Students who are current marijuana users (28% of all high school students) are much more likely to report both being offered drugs and offering them to others.
